

Muse Site Walkthrough

Direction 2: The Thesis

The Thesis is an argument-led homepage: it names the market problem, states the quality bar Muse holds against it, then opens the three doors as consequences of that standard, not as a service menu. An argument-first homepage direction for muse.sa. The site states its founding claim in the hero, names the problem it is arguing against, states the standard it holds itself to, then opens Build, Ventures and Think as three ways to act on that standard. Screenshots in this walkthrough are section-exact captures from the direction build, taken at 1440x900 desktop and 390x844 mobile, both at a 2x device scale. Copy is quoted verbatim from the site's own content files.

One of three homepage directions, each built and deployed separately. This walkthrough documents the Thesis direction section by section, in the exact order it renders on the page, in both languages, and ends with the decisions the team needs to make before this direction ships.

04 Hero · content and rationale

States the founding thesis in two lines: shipping is easy now, shipping well is not. Backs it with a one-line proof of what Muse actually is, and opens a single path forward. Everything below the fold argues for this claim; nothing repeats it.

Content anatomy

- Headline, two lines: a plain claim, then its turn.
- Tagline: where the company is based and what kind of company it is.
- Subtitle: a one-line claim about actually building versus presenting.
- One CTA, into the contact flow.

Verbatim copy

English

Why it sits here

First screen, full viewport. A visitor who never scrolls should still leave with the correct idea: this is a company arguing a specific position on quality, not a generic AI-transformation pitch.

SOURCE

The two-line thesis structure carries Muse's own positioning claim. No source in this direction's reference set (Reference Evidence 1 to 6) specifically informed the Hero; it is not adapted copy.

05 The Problem · English

Section-exact capture: begins at the eyebrow and heading, ends before the Standard heading. No Standard pixels in any Problem image.

الكل عنده استراتيجية. قليل اللي ينفذ. Mobile.

07 The Problem · content and rationale

States the market problem the thesis argues against: strategy decks with nothing shipped, AI content noise, and fabricated case studies. Sets up why a named standard is needed at all.

Content anatomy

- Eyebrow: names this as the problem Muse sees.
- Heading: the strategy-versus-shipping gap.
- Three cards, each naming one concrete failure mode: unshipped AI strategies, content-farm noise, fabricated case studies.

Verbatim copy

English

Eyebrow: The problem we see

Heading: Everyone has a strategy. Almost nobody ships.

Item 1 title: AI strategies nobody ships

Item 1 body: Every company has an AI strategy. Almost nobody has an AI feature in production. The gap between deck and reality is where value dies.

Item 2 title: Content farms, not knowledge

Item 2 body: The Saudi AI space is full of reposted threads, 10-tip listicles, and videos claiming Claude built a website that was actually hand-coded. Signal-to-noise is near zero.

Item 3 title: Fake case studies, real budgets

Item 3 body: Agencies show logos they never worked with. Consultants sell transformations they've never executed. Clients pay for decks, not outcomes.

Why it sits here

Directly after the Hero states the thesis, because the claim that shipping well is hard needs the concrete problem stated before the Standard that answers it can land.

SOURCE

The sentence-led problem argument, naming a specific failure mode rather than a generic pain-point grid, is Direct input from Basecamp's problem argument (Reference Evidence 1). The three failure modes described are Muse's own observations of the Saudi market, not adapted copy.

The fixed header is hidden only for the instant of capture on every section after the Hero, then restored. This is presentation cleanup so the sticky pill does not paint over a heading in a screenshot; it is not a change to the section itself, and the Hero capture keeps the header visible because it documents the true first screen.

10 The Standard · content and rationale (1 of 2)

Names the quality bar the thesis holds itself to: real data in every state, nothing shipped the team wouldn't use itself, and the founder's enterprise-delivery background as the reason the standard exists, not the story.

Content anatomy

- Eyebrow: names this as the standard Muse holds.
- Heading: Muse as the quality bar, the other choice.
- Three paragraphs building the standard's argument in sequence.
- Three pillars: real data every state, stakeholder-friendly by default, shipped beats planned.

English

Eyebrow: The standard we hold

Heading: Muse is the quality bar. The other choice.

Paragraph 1: We've seen what bad looks like. We know what good looks like. The difference isn't talent. It's whether you're willing to do the work that nobody sees.

Paragraph 2: Real data in every state. Every edge case designed. Nothing ships that we wouldn't use ourselves. That's not a slogan. It's a written checklist we run on every release.

Paragraph 3: The founder spent years shipping enterprise applications at PIF-level organizations. That experience isn't the story. It's the reason the standard exists. Muse is the line.

11 The Standard · content and rationale (2 of 2)

The three pillars make the quality bar operational. English and Arabic are shown together before the placement and source explanation.

English

Pillar 1 title: Real data, every state

Pillar 1 body: No lorem ipsum in reviews. No happy-path-only designs. Empty states, error states, loading states, all real, all reviewed.

Pillar 2 title: Stakeholder-friendly by default

Pillar 2 body: Technical decisions explained in business terms. Weekly demos, not monthly reports. You talk to engineers, not account managers.

Pillar 3 title: Shipped beats planned

Pillar 3 body: The only status that counts is running in production. A working prototype this week beats a perfect spec next quarter.

العربية

Why it sits here

Directly after the Problem names the failure mode, the Standard names the specific bar Muse holds instead, on its own maroon band so it reads as a distinct claim before the Doors show it applied.

SOURCE AND ADAPTATION

The new-standard-through-concrete-contrast structure is Direct input from Retool's 'Why enterprises choose Retool' section (Reference Evidence 2): each pillar names and rejects a specific tradeoff. The specific paragraphs and pillars are Muse's own, not adapted copy.

Why it sits here

After the thesis, the problem and the standard are all stated, the doors are the standard applied: three concrete paths a visitor can take, each consistent with the bar just described.

SOURCE

The shared-card grammar and bilingual density are Direct input from Salla's solutions section (Reference Evidence 4): balanced capability lanes under one heading. The sequential, distinct-verb path structure is Direct input from Netlify's three-action flow (Reference Evidence 5), applied here to Build, Ventures and Think in order. The specific door copy is Muse's own.

The fixed header is hidden only for the instant of capture on every section after the Hero, then restored. 17 Manifesto · content and rationale

Extends the thesis into a why-now argument: the cost of building good software is falling, so the gap between companies that move and companies that plan is about to become permanent. Closes with the sharpest form of that tension and a second CTA.

Content anatomy

- Section heading: the two-year claim.
- Three short paragraphs building the argument in sequence.
- Pressure statement: two short lines, plain claim then its consequence.
- CTA, into the same contact flow as the Hero.

Verbatim copy

English

Heading: The next decade of software gets decided in the next two years.

Paragraph 1: The cost of building good software is collapsing. That doesn't help you on its own. It means the gap between the companies that move and the ones that plan is about to get permanent.

Paragraph 2: You could drive that from inside. Most won't, and not for lack of ambition. Day to day operations always win the calendar.

Paragraph 3: We're not interested in your roadmap for this quarter. We're interested in the one that matters in five years.

Pressure, lead: AI isn't optional.

Pressure, emphasis: Waiting is the risk.

Why it sits here

After the doors, because a visitor who has already picked a door is ready for the argument about why the choice is urgent now, continuing the same thesis rather than opening a new one.

SOURCE

No source in this direction's reference set (Reference Evidence 1 to 6) specifically informed the Manifesto; it continues the Standard's argument in Muse's own words, not adapted copy.

The fixed header is hidden only for the instant of capture on every section after the Hero, then restored. 20 Outcomes band · content and rationale

One sentence, large type, restating the delivery standard: Muse ends engagements with outcomes, not just tools. A pause between the Manifesto's argument and the Ticker below, not a new argument.

Content anatomy

- Single centered paragraph, two clauses, the second one accented.

Verbatim copy

English

Why it sits here

A short band deliberately kept short: it closes the Manifesto's argument with a standard, then hands off to the Ticker without asking the visitor to read anything else first.

How is Muse different from a typical dev shop?: We're a small, senior team, not a rotating cast of contractors. No 100-slide strategy decks with nothing behind them. We scope fast, build with you, and measure ourselves on what actually shipped.

What does AI transformation actually mean?: Finding where AI removes real friction in how your business runs, building the systems that do it reliably, and getting your team actually using them. Then repeating that cycle as the tools improve.

Who's on the team?: A small senior team based in Riyadh. The people who scope your work are the people who build it, so you're talking to engineers in the first conversation rather than a sales layer. Names and backgrounds are on the about page.

How does pricing work?: Every engagement is scoped and priced on its own, once we understand what you're actually trying to do. Tell us the problem and we'll come back with a number and exactly what sits inside it.

Who do you typically work with?: Teams that want to move fast without dropping the quality bar. That runs from a founder shipping a first product to an enterprise team trying to get an AI initiative out of pilot purgatory.

Why it sits here

After the standard has been named and argued (Standard, Manifesto, Outcomes, Ticker) and before the final ask (CTA), because objection-handling belongs right before the point of decision.

SOURCE

Objection-handling as a designed trust section is Direct input from MOZN's current English FAQ (Reference Evidence 3). The operational trust architecture, naming domain expertise ahead of a close, is Independent validation against Intercom's trust section (Reference Evidence 6), surfaced after the fact and not the origin of Muse's copy. The specific questions and answers are Muse's own.

وش يفرقكم عن شركات التطوير الثانية?: احنا فريق صغير من أصحاب الخبرة، مو مجموعة متعاقدين جايين عن طريق وسيط. ما راح نسوي لك عرض استراتيجي من 100 شريحة ما أحد يفهمه. بنجلس معك، ونفهم منك، ثم نحدد النطاق ونبي معك، هدفنا مو التسليم، هدفنا نبني منتجات نفخر فيها، جودتها عالية وتخدم احتياجاتك فعلاً.

ما معنى التحول بالذكاء الاصطناعي عملياً?: الهدف مو أن كل موظفينا يستخدمون الذكاء الاصطناعي. الهدف أننا نفهم وين المكان اللي نقدر نوظفه فيه عشان يقدم فائدة فعلية قابلة للقياس، تحدث أثراً في طريقة عمل شركتك. وإن احتجنا، نبني الأنظمة اللي تمكّن فريقك فعلياً على أرض الواقع. ثم نقيس الأثر ونحسّن بناءً على الاستخدام الفعلي، مو على التخیلات.

مين في الفريق?: فريق صغير من أصحاب الخبرة، مقره الرياض. واللي يجلس معك ويحدد نطاق عملك ويجتمع معك بشكل دوري هو نفسه اللي قاعد يشتغل عليه، بدون فريق مبيعات أو وسطاء.

كيف يعمل التسعير?: كل مشروع يُحدد نطاقه ويُسعر على حدة، بعد ما نفهم وش تحاول تسوي بالضبط. خبّرنا بالمشكلة، ونرجع لك برقم يوضح وش يشمل.

مع من تعملون بالعادة?: فرق تريد التحرك بسرعة من غير ما تتنازل عن الجودة. من مؤسس يطلق منتجه الأول إلى مؤسسات وشركات كبيرة تحاول إخراج مبادرات ذكاء اصطناعي ومنتجات من مراحل تجريبية ونماذج أولية مالها نهاية.

34 Open decisions (1 of 2)

Each decision below carries a recommendation. A different answer from the team changes the plan.

1. Planned Proof Wall and Experience Signal are not on this homepage

The direction's planning note (docs/three-doors/direction-2-the-thesis.md) describes a homepage Proof Wall and an Experience Signal section referencing the founder's background. Neither renders in the current build: HomeSections.tsx runs Hero, The Problem, The Standard, Three Doors, Manifesto, Outcomes Band, Ticker, FAQ and CTA, then the global Footer. The founder's enterprise-delivery background appears only inside The Standard's third paragraph.

Update the planning note to match the shipped section order, or decide whether a dedicated Proof Wall belongs on this homepage before external circulation. Do not describe a Proof Wall as present in any external-facing material until it exists.

2. whoWeBuildFor content is written but unused

messages/en.json and messages/ar.json carry a full Home.whoWeBuildFor entry (a heading and a body naming founders and operators) and a matching WhoWeBuildFor.tsx component exists in the codebase, but HomeSections.tsx never renders it on this homepage.

Either add the WhoWeBuildFor section back into the homepage, most naturally between Three Doors and Manifesto, or remove the unused catalogue entry and component so the content files match what the site actually shows.

3. The Arabic register

The Problem, Standard, Doors and FAQ copy on this direction is written in a deliberately colloquial Saudi register (for example, the Standard's own line translates to 'not lorem ipsum in reviews'), while Legal and Careers content elsewhere on the site stays formal.

Confirm the split with a native copy review before this direction ships externally: colloquial for Hero, Problem, Standard, Doors, Manifesto and FAQ, formal for Legal and Careers.

4. MOZN as a live reference, not a copied source

MOZN's current English FAQ is used as live evidence for the objection-handling pattern (Reference Evidence 3). MOZN's Arabic FAQ is currently empty and a 'Globally Recognized Technologies' section is hidden on the live page; neither is usable evidence.

Keep MOZN as a Direct-input structure reference only. Do not cite the Arabic FAQ or the hidden section as evidence in any later revision of this direction.

5. Whole-section Standard capture versus automatic splitting

The measured English mobile Standard is 1604 CSS px high and the Arabic version is 1386 CSS px. The first automatic child split duplicated the maroon section and cut its argument mid-pillar because an absolute background layer was mistaken for a semantic split boundary. A full element capture remains legible at the 46 mm phone width used in the PDF.

Keep The Standard on force-element capture for both locales and both devices. If the copy grows, add explicit semantic split selectors for the heading and pillar groups rather than restoring geometric midpoint splitting.

36 Structure map

The homepage in exact rendered order, top to bottom, as it appears in Muse's Direction 2: The Thesis build.

#	SECTION	JOB
1	Hero	Founding thesis and one CTA
2	The Problem	The market failure this thesis argues against
3	The Standard	The quality bar Muse holds instead
4	Three doors	Build / Ventures / Think, the standard applied
5	Manifesto	Why-now argument, closed by the pressure statement
6	Outcomes band	One-line delivery standard
7	Ticker	Repeating release-rule marquee
8	FAQ	Five objections, answered
9	Final CTA	One direct ask
10	Footer	Navigation, contact, legal

External influences are indexed below. Muse-owned lines are labeled as such on their content pages. The six sources shown here are the same six shown as live evidence next.

PATTERN	SOURCE	ADAPTATION
Sentence-led problem argument naming a specific failure mode	Basecamp (basecamp.com)	Three Muse-observed failure modes (unshipped AI strategy, content-farm noise, fabricated case studies) replace Basecamp's own claim.
New-standard section built from concrete, named contrasts	Retool (retool.com)	Three pillars naming what Muse actually does (real data, stakeholder access, shipped over planned) replace Retool's enterprise contrasts.
FAQ as a designed trust section, not a support afterthought	MOZN's current English FAQ (mozn.ai)	Five specific, checkable objections in both languages; questions and answers are Muse's own. MOZN's empty Arabic FAQ and hidden section are not used.

PATTERN	SOURCE	ADAPTATION
Shared card grammar across distinct capability lanes, bilingual density	Salla (salla.com)	Applied to Build, Ventures and Think instead of Salla's service lanes.
Sequential paths with distinct verb CTAs	Netlify (netlify.com)	Informs treating the three doors as an ordered sequence of actions rather than a static menu.
Operational trust architecture ahead of a close	Intercom (intercom.com)	Independent validation for the FAQ's trust-before-close position; the specific claims are Muse's own.
